PHILADELPHIA,

SATURDAY EVENING, DECEMBER 22.

CONCORD, (N. H.) DEC. 1.

On Saturday evening laſt, his Excellency Governor GILMAN, and ſuite, arrived in town from Exeter.

LEGISLATURE.

On Monday, the committee from both branches, waited on his Excellency the Governor, informing that a quorum of each was preſent, and ready to receive his communications. He aſſigned Tueſday at 12 o'clock to meet the two Houſes in the Repreſentatives Chamber.

Agreeably to appointment, on Tueſday at 12 o'clock, his Excellency, attended by the Council, came in, and addreſſed the Senate and Houſe of Repreſentatives in the following

SPEECH.

Gentlemen of the Senate, and Gentlemen of the Houſe of Repreſentatives

SELECTED by the citizens of the State, and aſſembled at this time agreeably to your own determination, for the important purpoſe of promoting the general welfare; it muſt afford great ſatisfaction, that our ſyſtems both of State and National Government are ſo well adapted to this deſirable end. To redreſs public grievances, if any ſuch there are, and to make laws calculated to ſecure the bleſſings of liberty and advance the happineſs of the people, muſt be a pleaſing employment.

The great degree of harmony and tranquility, ſo apparent as it reſpects the internal concerns of the State, muſt be highly gratifying; and if the welfare of the people requires an amendment to any of the laws now in force, or that new laws ſhould be made, theſe circumſtances muſt be known to their repreſentatives.

United with other States by a Federal compact, for certain purpoſes, our intereſts are inſeparably connected with that government, which is endeared to us by the highly beneficial effects it has produced.

When we ſee a foreign nation overturning ancient ſyſtems of government, without any regard to their form: extending robbery and devaſtation as far as their forces can reach; when we ſee them contemning all moral and religious obligations; deſpiſing national compacts; plundering our citizens while in purſuit of lawful commerce; inſulting our government, and threatening us with the fate of nations it has degraded and deſtroyed! At ſuch a time as this, we ſhould highly prize the bleſſings of good government, and determine with one voice and mind, to ſupport and defend our rights and privileges, againſt all hoſtile attempts whatever.

Much of the blood and treaſure of the United States of America, has been expended themſelves in ſuch manner as they ſhould chooſe: this great object being gained, our ſyſtem of general government has been formed in as free a manner, and under circumſtances as favorable, perhaps more ſo, than that of any government which ever exiſted over ſuch an extenſive territory—It is ſuch a ſyſtem as the people have choſen—may be altered when it ſhall be found neceſſary—the perſons appointed to adminiſter it, return to the claſs of citizens at ſhort intervals, and others are ſelected in their places. What more can be deſired? If this is deſtroyed, where ſhall we look for a free government?

While the French nation was apparently purſuing meaſures for the promotion of liberty, they had the good wiſhes at leaſt, of a large proportion of the citizens of the United States; but, unfortunately for our country, they have had much encouragement from the conduct of many citizens, when it ſeemed almoſt impoſſible that any one ſhould entertain an idea that the freedom of man was their object—after they had proſtrated governments, once free, and tyrannized over the citizens—and after it had become apparent, that univerſal domination was their object. The conduct of thoſe who rule over the French nation, has for a long time been hoſtile to our own: By their arts and intrigues aided by the conduct of ſome of our own citizens, our Government has been traduced; attempts have been made, and in ſome inſtances ſucceeded, in exciting unreaſonable jealouſies among the people, perſuading them that they have a ſeparate intereſt from thoſe whom they have elected to adminiſter the Government—no ſervices, however wiſe, faithful and diſintereſted, and however long continued, have been ſufficient to ſecure ſome of our beſt citizens from calumny; and ſome of our own periodical publications ſeem to be proſtituted to this purpoſe: I need only mention the attempts to abuſe a WASHINGTON, and an ADAMS!

Peace, on honourable terms, is undoubtedly the deſire of all good citizens—the conduct of the Preſident, in ſending three Envoys Extraordinary and Miniſters Plenipotentiary to the French Republic, is full evidence of his opinion on this ſubject. Before the inſtructions given theſe Envoys were made public, reports were circulated, that the Preſident had not a deſire for peace; and ſuſpicions were excited, that his inſtructions were not calculated for that purpoſe: But when they became public, it was acknowledged by the enemies of his adminiſtration, that theſe reports and ſuſpicions were without foundation. The inſtructions are in the hands of many citizens, and ſhould be read by all; It is difficult to imagine how they could have gone further, without deeply wounding the intereſt and independence of our country.—Theſe extraordinary exertions having failed of the deſired effect, it is not eaſy to diſcern what more can be done in this way—Determined to preſerve our rights as an independent nation, ſuch meaſures will undoubtedly be taken by the General Government as ſhall appear beſt calculated for that purpoſe; and I rejoice that the citizens of this ſtate are ſo well united, and have given ſo many proofs by the official acts of the Legiſlature, and otherwiſe, of their firm adherence to our national Government, confidence in its adminiſtration, and determination to ſupport it.

Preſuming that a Law eſtabliſhing a new proportion of Taxes, will be paſſed the preſent ſeſſion; and as it uſually requires a conſiderable time to determine the principles, and prepare the bill; permit me to recommend an early attention to this ſubject.

The preſent ſtate of the Treaſury will be laid before you, from which you will be enabled to determine what further meaſures may be neceſſary reſpecting the finances of the State.

A letter from his Excellency the Governor of the Commonwealth of Maſſachuſetts, and a reſolution of the Legiſlature reſpecting an alteration in the Conſtitution of the General Government—alſo a letter from his Excellency the Governor of the State of Connecticut, and a reſolution of the Legiſlature, of the ſame purport—will be laid before you; the ſubject is highly important, and I doubt not will be duly conſidered. Whatever bills you may think proper to paſs will be attended to with candor; and it will be highly pleaſing to me, to unite with you in meaſures calculated to advance the welfare of our common Country.

JOHN TAYLOR GILMAN.

State of New Hampſhire, November 27th 1798.

ANSWER
Of the Houſe of Repreſentatives—preſented to the Governor yeſterday.

MAY IT PLEASE YOUR EXCELLENCY,

IT is with great ſatisfaction, that the Houſe of Repreſentatives contemplate the pleaſing employment aſſigned them by their conſtituents, of correcting the errors (if any) in the exiſting laws, paſſing new acts, redreſſing public grievances, and adopting ſuch other meaſures as are calculated to perpetuate the bleſſings of a free Government. And it is with additional pleaſure, that we rely on your abilities, integrity and promptneſs, to aid and aſſiſt us in effecting theſe important objects.

Coming, as we do, from all parts of the State, and having the means of knowing the ſentiments, it is with confidence we aſſure you, that but one opinion pervades the State reſpecting the meaſures of our Federal Government—that we are thoroughly perſuaded the general Government has adopted, and ſteadily purſued, every pacific meaſure, conſiſtent with the honor, dignity and ſecurity of an independent nation, to compromiſe exiſting differences with the French Republic; and it is matter of regret and indignation, that that Republic is yet oppoſed to the moſt equitable terms of reconciliation—that it ſtill continues to inſult our Government—to trample on our rights—to invade and deſtroy our commerce—and inſidiouſly propagate the falſe and dangerous idea, that the Government and people of United America are divided.—But be aſſured, Sir, that the people of this State, and diſclaiming confidence, rely on the wiſdom, integrity, vigilance and firmneſs of our National Government, to adopt every neceſſary meaſure to maintain and defend our dear-bought rights and privileges: And that we and our Conſtituents are ready to rally round the ſtandard of our Government, and defend it at the expence of our blood and treaſure, againſt the machinations and violence of a foreign power aſpiring to univerſal domination.

We lament, that ſo many inſtances have occurred in this country, in which periodical publications have been the vehicles of ſlander and calumny againſt the guardians of its rights; and that any American ſhould be ſo degenerate as to abuſe and vilify an "ADAMS, or a WASHINGTON."

A law for eſtabliſhing a new proportion of public taxes—and the exiſting ſtate of the Treaſury—are objects worthy of our conſideration.

The reſolutions of the Legiſlature of Maſſachuſetts and Connecticut, are of ſuch an important nature, and come from ſources ſo reſpectable, as to merit, and ſhall receive, our candid attention.

ANSWER,
Of the Senate of New-Hampſhire, to the Governor's Speech.
[Preſented on Friday laſt.]

May it pleaſe your Excellency,

THE Senate of the ſtate of New-Hampſhire, with particular pleaſure meet your Addreſs at the opening of the preſent ſeſſion of the Legiſlature.

Aſſembled for the purpoſe of conſulting the common good of our conſtituents, we contemplate with ſatisfaction the advantages we enjoy under a free government, to render a people happy; the effects of which are ſo apparent in our preſent internal tranquility and union.

While we view the nation of France, under the falſe pretext of eſtabliſhing liberty amongſt themſelves and other nations of the earth, tyrannizing over the victims of their ambition; unprovokedly and indiſcriminately deſolating cities, and overturning governments—we cannot but prize the bleſſings of our own, and reſolve, at every hazard, to defend it.

The Conſtitution of our general government ſecures to us every privilege which a rational mind can deſire, and is the admiration of the wiſeſt politicians.

The intercourſe of kind offices between the French nation and America, and the mutual ſervices rendered each other, for many years, had united them to us in bonds of amity which no inconſiderable cauſe has broken, and while the liberty and happineſs of man appeared to us their only object, our good wiſhes attended them in every purſuit: But avarice and power, gaining aſcendency over honeſty and reaſon, hurried them on to ſuch wild extravagancies, as aſtoniſhed the moſt friendly nations, and incurred our juſt reſentment.

When we turn our attention to the long continued depredations on our commerce, the repeated insults to our general government in the rejection of our envoys, and the insidious measures pursued to divide and distract our councils, every tender feeling is extinguished—But what better can we expect from a nation divested of piety and every moral sense, and whose Creed is Atheism! — With such, friendship cannot be maintained, and solemn treaties are as idle tales.

It is to be lamented, that any American citizen would take a part on the side of our enemies, to calumniate our favorite Rulers and weaken the arm of government. We lament also, the abuse of that fundamental privilege in our constitution, the liberty of the Press: But calumny, when issuing from some particular periodical fountains, and aimed at "a WASHINGTON, or an ADAMS," is praise: For such illustrious characters need only be named, to be admired; whose wise and patriotic exertions, from the commencement of our revolution, to the present day, have uniformly tended to obtain and preserve our Liberty and Independence.

The measures pursued by the Executive of our General Government, in appointing and instructing Envoys with a view to operate a reconciliation between these United States and the French Republic, are evidences to us of superior wisdom, and an ardent desire for peace; and the effect of their negociation convincing, that further attempts would prove fruitless. Nothing therefore remains, but to place ourselves in a proper situation of defence, having no alternative but the ultimate argument of injured republics: but in any event, relying on the wisdom of our constituted authorities to dictate, we shall ever stand ready to co operate with them for the general safety.

The important and interesting subjects contained in the communications from our neighboring states, together with those which more immediately concern this, will meet our early and due attention; confident of your Excellency's readiness to unite with us, in every measure conducive to the welfare of our common country.

RIGHTS OF MAN.

LIBERTY and EQUALITY,

One and Indivisible.

On the 13th ult. three days after the trial of Matthew Lyon for Sedition, the office of Mr. John Cook, of Poultney, a respectable young lawyer, was broken open, and his papers destroyed or dispersed. Mr. Cook was a principal witness against Lyon, on the above trial.—The following are the names of persons arrested at the suit of Mr. Cook, to respond the damages he has sustained in the depredations on his property;—John M'Arthur, and Jeremy H. Dwyer, both of Lyon's printing-office, Daniel M'Arthur, Merrit Beach, and Charles Hawkins, jun. all of Fairhaven; Elkanah Ashley, Poultney. As the guilt or innocence of these persons will soon be determined in a court of justice, from motives of delicacy we forbear to make any further observations lest we might be supposed to give a bias to the opinion of a jury.

On the 6th instant some villains girdled a fine young fruit-bearing orchard, the property of Mr. Silas Hamilton of Fairhaven; they destroyed 120 apple trees It may be recollected that this Mr. Hamilton is the person who Matthew Lion prosecuted for defamation some time since. It seems Mr. Hamilton had asserted that Lion had forged a letter to favor his election to Congress, and had given certain five pail kettles for votes. We do not know that we state the defamatory words accurately; of this we are certain, Lyon prosecuted Mr. Hamilton for defaming his character, Mr. H. confessed the words, and justified; the jury gave a verdict in his favor, and Lyon had to pay costs. This is the same man who has had his orchard destroyed.

MORE RIGHTS OF MAN.

On the night of the 10th inst. Mr. Rann of Poultney, near to Fairhaven, had a part of the trees of his orchard girdled; but the villains were frightened, and fled before they had completed their diabolical purpose.—N. B Mr. Rann, was the first person who mounted the cockade in that town.

MORE LIBERTY & EQUALITY

On the 11th inst, the orchard of Mr. Peter How, of Poultney was partly destroyed; several fruit bearing apple trees being girdled.—Mr. Peter How is a very honest pious man.

BALTIMORE, December 19.

A few days ago, Mr. Upton Bruce, a member from Frederick county, introduced into the house of delegates of this state a motion for leave to bring in a bill, entitled "an act for the gradual abolition of Slavery"—After some alteration upon the provisions that might be adopted in this bill, and the expediency of carrying it into effect at this present time, Mr. Bruce dicovered a disposition in the house opposed to it, withdrew his motion; but at the time of doing so, declared he did it with the express intention of bringing it forward again in the course of a few days, when he would lay before the house the plan he had marked out to bring about this desirable end, and hoped to find in them a temper more favorable to his wishes.

GENTLEMEN,

That the Yellow Fever belongs to a Genus, essentially different from that of the Bilious or Remitting Fevers, endemial to marshy situations in the Summer and Autumnal season, or differs, not only in degree but in kind from every species of Bilious fever, is also supported by the authority of almost every author of credit that has written on the subject, and that has had opportunities of observing it in all its varieties.

Among these I need only mention Warren on the pestilential fever at Barbados in the year 1721 and 1733—Hughes's Natural History of Barbados—Desportes on the diseases of St. Domingo—Hilary on the diseases of Barbadoes—Schotte on the Febris Atrabiliaris at Goree in Africa, A. D. 1778—Blane on the Diseases of Seamen—Mosely on Tropical Diseases—Chisholm on the Pestilential Fever at Grenada, in 1793—and Wright's letter to Dr. Garthshore, in Medical Facts, vol. 7th.

The majority of the West-India writers, as well as those who have seen the disease in the United States of America, are also decidedly of opinion that the Yellow Fever is highly contagious and of pestilential origin: But, they all agree that it is only so in warm, and confined air.

Hence it appears necessary to establish such regulations that will embrace two objects; viz. such as will effectually prevent the introduction of foreign contagion through the medium of commerce, and such as will render the air of our sea-ports so pure and cool, that it may counteract or resist the power of the contagion, when it is introduced, so as to prevent it from producing its usual calamitous effects.

The following are the facts and arguments on which I ground my opinion, that the Fever which proved so destructive to the lives and interest of the inhabitants of Philadelphia, was derived from imported contagion this year; viz.

The first cases that occurred were traced to a ship of 20 guns, called the Deborah, which arrived at Philadelphia on the 18th of July, on board of which several persons had died during her passage from Jeremie to this port, and one of her crew at the Marine Hospital soon after her arrival. That several persons died on board the Deborah while in the port of Jeremie and during her passage to Philadelphia, was acknowledged, on the 12th of August, to Dr. Currie, by Mr. John Lewis, mate of the Deborah—by the cooper of the same to Dr. Wister—by the carpenter, John Bodin, (on oath) to the Mayor of Burlington, as has been acknowledged by the President of the Board of Health—by Capt. Dickeson who came passenger on board the Deborah—and by one of her crew that took lodgings at Mr. Doyle's.

While the Deborah was performing quarantine, it appears from the acknowledgement of Alexander Philips, who resided in the neighborhood where the disease made its first appearance, to Mr. Thomas Towne and to Mr. John Purdon, that he brought up a sick man from on board a vessel laying at the Fort;—this he mentioned first to Mr. T. Towne, and afterwards to Mr. J. Purdon; for which Mr. Purdon reproved him very severely. Mr. I. Milnor informed Mr. Purdon, that Philips told him he brought a man from the Deborah the last night of her quarantine, who was taken sick on the 2d, and died on the 5th of August. During his sickness he was attended by Dr Griffitts, who prescribed, at the same time, for a sick sailor at Philips's.*

Dr. B. Duffield informed the College, that he attended a man in Southwark, with the Yellow Fever, on the 23d of July, that had been at work on board the Deborah while she lay near Race-street, where she came to on the 18th.

Dr. Proudfit attended one of the name of Ralston, who had worked on board the Deborah soon after her arrival, who was taken ill of fever on the 25th, and died very yellow on the 29th of July, being the 5th from the attack.

Dr. Currie attended a carpenter at Acheson Thompson's in Water a little way below Walnut-street, a lodging house next door or next but one to Philips's, who had been on board the Deborah on the 22d, and was attacked the 26th July with the yellow fever of which he died on the 4th of August.

Aleck Morrison a Scotch sailor, who lodged in the same house with the carpenter, died on the evening of the 28th, after having appeared like one intoxicated for two days.

A lad of the name of Wright, Nephew to Mrs. M'Gill near Chesnut-street, went on board the Deborah as soon as she arrived, and frequently afterwards, and was attacked with fever on the 31st of July.

* David Shraks affirms that Philips got liquor from him before the Deborah came up, and told him it was to take with him, as he was going to bring up one of his old lodgers from the Deborah. Acheson Thompson and John Doyle neighbors to Philips also assert that he brought a sick sailor from the Deborah, to his house.

ERRATUM.

In the piece signed "a Regimental Surgeon, first paragraph of the "Sketch" &c.—insert the year 1747, as one of those in which the Yellow Fever has made its appearance in Philadelphia.

To John Ward Fenno.

THERE appeared in your paper of Tuesday evening last what you term a list of United Irishmen. It is of little consequence to the public, whether I am or am not one of that body, but as falsehood, in whatever shape it appears, should be scouted, I do not chuse to be introduced before the public wantonly without resenting it. If there is any crime attached to the name of United Irishman, I am clear of it. When I applied to you with a view to learn by what authority you made use of my name, accompanied by a false assertion, which I suppose was meant to injure me, if such a charge ought to be cause of injury to any man, for reasons best known to yourself, you thought it convenient to refuse to name of your authority——I must therefore conclude that the LIE belongs to yourself. Merely to shew the public upon what foundation your assertions rest, I subjoin the following affidavit.

SAMUEL PARKE.

Sworn and subscribed before me, this 19th day of Decr. 1798.

JOHN JENNINGS, alderman.

December 21.

To John Ward Fenno,

IN your paper of Tuesday last, you represented me as a member of that body called United Irishmen in America. The assertion is not true: I never was in their society, nor do I know a single individual who is a member. I came to America in the month of October 1797, and I solemnly declare that I never was in any political society whatever in the country. And I defy any person to prove the contrary. Every editor ought to be accountable for what appears in his paper, and as this falsehood has appeared in your paper, I desire you to contradict it. If you do not wish to be considered as the author of a falsehood so malicious, you are welcome to produce the name of your informer, and let it rest with him.

I do not mention this out of disrespect to that body called United Irishmen, as I know nothing about them; but merely with a design to inform the public, that you with a milicious intent, had declared to the world a most notorious untruth. That it is with a malicious intent, is clear from the preamble of your false declaration, in which you represent these men as dangerous to the state, as having dark and bloody designs, as murderers, assassins, and what not—and you most wickedly and groundlesily assert that I am one of them. If this is not malice, I know not what malice is.

You know that the President has it now in his power, to send out of the country any alien, whom he may consider as an enemy to the United States, and you endeavor by the most gross falsehoods and misrepresentations, to exhibit me as such a character—I leave you to solace yourself with the pleasing reflections, which must necessarily arise in your mind from such conduct.

I wonder why you are sorry that you can mention only twelve names (after inviting information so pressingly) as with the same propriety with which you mentioned mine, you might have mentioned twelve thousand, or all the names with which you are acquainted.

You ask why should you mention the names of Samuel Wylie, John Black, &c. the answer can only be this, merely to expose yourself. There can be no good at all in telling lies. But sometimes men's malice out does their cunning. It ought to be considered, however, that you are but a boy, and may do better in time to come.

With hearty wishes for your amendment, I am, &c.

JOHN BLACK.

December 21.

[I hurl back in the teeth of these fellows every item of their abuse. I have called neither of them an United Irishman. If I had, nothing they can say or do, would alter my opinion, respecting them, their principles or their purposes.]

A CARD.

There can be but one reason for the opposition to the Bankrupt Law, which is, to make as many desperate men as possible, throughout the United States; who, seeing no end to their calamities, may effect a subversion of all order both civil and religious;—then Huzza for Liberty and Equality, à la Francois, a la Guillotine, a la Victor Hughes.

Horses to Winter.

HORSES will be taken in to winter at PROSPECT HILL, at the 12 Mile Stone, on the Bristol road; they will be well fed with clover and timothy hay, well littered and cleaned, and will also have a large field to exercise themselves in when the weather is good.—Enquire of Mr. William Bell, merchant, Water street, or on the premises.

Extract of a letter from the Consul of the United States at Gibraltar, dated the 18th and 23d of Oct. 1798.

"The American ship Roanoke, Ebenezer Paine, commander, from Norfolk in Virginia, with a valuable cargo of Cocoa, Indigo, &c. bound to Cadiz and a market, was brought in two days ago by a British privateer, on pretence of being Spanish property; and after going through the customary interrogations, has been cleared.

"Since the vessel was freed, being of 333 tons burthen, I met Earl St. Vincent, when I took the opportunity to request the favor of leave for her going to Cadiz with her cargo, which he not only granted, but also a convoy, as she is not armed, with leave to bring out for the United States a cargo of the produce of Spain.

"At foot you have the names of the six French prizes sent in by admiral Nelson, five of which are now ready to proceed to Lisbon, there to get some temporary repairs before they go for England; they are under jury masts, and in a shocking state. Adm. Nelson is blocking up Malta.

NAMES OF PRIZES.
Le Franklin,	80 guns
Le Tonant,	80 do.
Le Spartiat,	74 do.
Le Conquerant,	74 do.
Le Peuple Souveraine,	74 do.
L' Aqullion,	74 do.

"By a Dane in 27 days from Leghorn, it is reported that the Maltese had rose on the French garrison, dispossessed them of the island, and thrown themselves under the protection of Great-Britain and the King of Naples;—He further reports, that Buonaparte had been compelled by the Turks to re-embark his army, and was in great want of provisions;—that on the other hand the English continued to block them up."

COMMUNICATION.

The object of Logan's mission was to counteract the measures of our government.—Therefore Logan, and his employers, can be looked upon in no other light, than as traitors. It was not for the benefit of America that he was sent; but, to advise the French what plan to pursue, in order to accomplish our ruin. The outrageous proceeding of France was fast destroying the Jacobin interest in this country, and Logan went to save their sinking cause, by persuading the Tyrants to change their mode, not to alter their intention. In any other nation, the necks of Logan and his EMPLOYERS, would pay the forfeit of their crimes: but here, with shame be it spoken, they will probably not only go unhung, but unpunished.

Any compromise with the present rulers of France, cannot be contemplated without horror, much less, such an one as they would be willing to make. A writer in this paper under the signature of American Independence lately took for his motto these lines:

"The world is burning, Frenchmen stand on high,

"And either they, or we, must lower lie."

I read them with pleasure at the time, and have thought on them with pleasure ever since. The sentiment should be impressed upon the mind of every American. It is founded in awful truth.

French tampering has been the means of enslaving almost half Europe.—God grant that this Western world may not be a sacrifice to it. If we are, it will be with our eyes open. We have a full knowledge of their views, and we have expressed it, in the President, therefore, if we are finally dupes to their cursed wiles, there will be no excuse for us.

[Russel's Com. Gaz.

New-London, Dec. 19.

The United States frigate, George Washington, Patrick Fletcher, esq. commander, sailed from Newport, on a cruise, on Wednesday last.

Charleston, December 3.

A gentleman who came in the Carolina from London, informs, that he was on board a frigate at Portsmouth on the 3d or 4th of October, and was there told by some of the officers, that a frigate had arrived at Sheerness, which left Lord Bridport's fleet in sight of the French fleet from Brest. It was also reported on board the frigate, that accounts had arrived at the admiralty, of the two fleets having met, and of the French being totally defeated.

From the Leesburgh (Virg.) Paper.

Madame Bache is constantly congratulating her jacobinic herde on the inestimable blessings resulting from the late embassy of the notorious Logan: To him she says they may look as their savior; through his intercession they are for a moment rescued from the indignation of the mighty republic. But a short time since, when this Logan was spoken of as an UNAUTHORISID envoy, every exertion was made use of to prove that he went to France merely as a Private Citizen; that he was not sent by Jefferson and the French party!! How inconsistent is the conduct of these satellites of France! At one time declaring to you that this officious docter did not go on any public business, and immediately after exulting in the success of his mission. Even publishing addresses presented him in France, by French Americans, expressive of their approbation of his conduct at Paris! However strange this may appear, with me it is no paradox: The last exertions of an expiring faction are now resorted to, and all their intrigues and and inconsistencies must appear. They say this Logan has effected the raising of the embargo; that he has induced the directory to cause a momentary suspention of depredations on our commerce, &c. What could the despots of France behold in this fellow (Logan) that induced them to do this? What could they see in this Private Citizen that commanded greater respect than the Official Envoys—but the agent of Thomas Jefferson, &c.? Want of proof in law prevents me from declaring him to be such; circumstances, (conscientious proof) are sufficiently strong to convince me of the fact. I do believe he was the envoy of Jefferson and Co. that he was directed to inform them that they were unable, any longer, to dupe the people of America; that their eyes are open to their own interest and danger; that the government of the United States were too sensible of French perfidy to suffer a continuance of their insults and injuries, and that, to prevent a war, it was expedient to relax in their severities, This indeed had the desired effect; but it is not to Doctor Logan nor Thomas Jefferson that we are indebted; it is to the energetic measures of our government——which they opposed, and would have prevented had it been in their power. While I sincerely lament that there is a French faction in existence, my affection for my native country will not permit me to remain a silent spectator, but stimulate me to watch with assiduity their actions, and endeavor, as far as the remoteness of my situation and means of information will admit, to expose them to public execration.

A CAUTION TO THE PUBLIC.
JOHN A. SHAEFFER, of Philadelphia, who has for a few years past been in the southern States, has had the effrontery to draw several Bills of Exchange on Timothy Pickering, Esq. THIS DAY PUBLISHED,
By WILLIAM YOUNG,
Corner of Chesnut and Second-streets,
JOAN OF ARC,
AN EPIC POEM,
By Robert Southey; with notes.
"WE do not hesitate to declare our opinion that the poetical powers displayed in it are of a very superior kind—Conceptions more lofty and daring, sentiments more commanding, and language more energetic, will not easily be found:—nor does scarcely any part of it sink into languor, as the glow of feelings and genius animates the whole. The language is, for the most part, modelled on that of Milton; and not unfrequently, it has a strong relish of Shakespeare."

A HISTORY, OR ANECDOTES OF THE REVOLUTION IN RUSSIA,
IN THE YEAR 1762.
Translated from the French of M. de Rulhiere; With an elegant Head of the late Empress.
[The second edition, price 75 cents,]
"The grounds of M. de Rulhiere's information seem indisputable, and his readers appear to have every reason to be satisfied with his discernment, in unfolding the motives and circumstances that concurred in bringing about this striking event.
"We shall only add, that we have seldom met with more interesting original anecdotes, than those that are contained in the little work which we have now reviewed."
